Incidence of low income in rural Canada

Ray D. Bollman, PhD

Chief of Research, Agriculture Division, Statistics Canada

This presentation will focus on income disparities between rural and urban Canada and the extent of poverty among rural residents in the country. Dr. Bollman will examine what low income and poverty mean and how they are measured. As well, he will discuss the correlates of poverty in rural Canada. Finally, he will explore the implications of rural poverty, with an emphasis on rural population health.

Dr. Ray D. Bollman has a BSc and MSc in Agricultural Economics from the University of Manitoba and a PhD in Economics from the University of Toronto. He has held a number of positions with Statistics Canada and is presently Chief of Research and Rural Data in the Agriculture Division. He was a visiting professor of agricultural economics at the University of Manitoba, 1985-1986 and the Stanley Knowles Visiting Professor at Brandon University in 1996. His research interests have evolved from the structure of agriculture and the pluriactivity of farm family members to all socio-economic aspects of rural populations. He edited Rural and Small Town Canada (Toronto: Thompson Educational Publishing, 1992) and (with John M. Bryden) Rural Employment: An International Perspective (Wallingford: CAB International, 1997). He is the editor of Statistics Canada's Rural and Small Town Canada ANALYSIS BULLETINS. He is also the immediate past-chair of the OECD Working Party on Territorial Indicators.
