Research Data Available via the Data Liberation Initiative

Ms. Sylvie Lafortune

Librarian, Government Information and Data
Laurentian University

Ms. Allison Tremblay

Data and GIS Library Assistant

This is a two-part session, where we start off by looking at the difference between microdata and aggregate data. Then we provide an overview of the DLI including how to search for datasets and accessing data and metadata, using examples such as the Canadian Community Health Survey. The second part, introduces users to the basics of mapping research data including what software, training and help are available at Laurentian University.

Ms. Sylvie Lafortune is the Government Information and Data Librarian at Laurentian University. She has been with the J.N. Desmarais Library for the last 20 years. She holds a Library Degree from McGill University and a Master's Degree in Sociology from Laurentian. This year Sylvie is Chair of her Department in the Library and she has been the Data Liberation Initiative (DLI) primary contact at LU for a number of years. Sylvie is always working hard to promote data and geospatial literacy here at LU.

Ms. Allison Tremblay is a Library Assistant with a specialization in GIS and Data. She has an Honours Degree in Geography from Laurentian University. She also has a post-diploma in GIS Applications from Sault College and has attended a variety of training seminars related to data and GIS. Her interests include 3D virtual modelling and she is currently working at building a model of the LU Campus. Allison has been with the J.N. Desmarais Library since 2008 and is working with Sylvie to promote data and geospatial literacy.

This free seminar is open to all interested persons
